

Ségou

Life along the Niger river

Once the capital of the mighty Bambara Kingdom, Ségou nowadays serves as the capital of the region of the same name. The city - situated on the Niger river shore - and its surroundings offer lots to see and do and are well worth a visit.

Stroll the lively Monday market on the river quay, visit the pottery market, enjoy walks along the red mud buildings in the Somono neighborhood and the colonial houses in the administrative neighborhood, make your own piece of mud-cloth in one of the bogolan workshops and go for a millet beer tasting.

Take some time to explore the city's surroundings. Visit Segoukoro - where part of the history of the Bambara Kingdom has been preserved, set out on a boat trip on the Niger river to experience Mali from a different perspective, go birding, visit one of the pottery villages or the hamlet where young & old masters the art of decorating calabashes.

And if you happen to be around in the month of February: don't miss out on the Festival sur le Niger, offering a combination of African music and local culture.

Ségou is one of the most undervalued destinations in Mali. Don't miss out on the chance to visit the city that for many a traveler turned out to be a pleasant surprise and a place to relax and re-energize.

Whether you are interested in local life, markets, culture, music, traditional dancing, arts & handicrafts, architecture, history, nature, life on the river or hiking, Ségou has something to offer for everyone.

Looking forward to share the abundance of our hometown and its surroundings with you!
